My paintings reflect my personal interests in design, architecture, science and history. Even though I have a solid knowledge of classical painting, my work has a contemporary flavor.

I am a skilled drawer and love the precision of pencil drawing, but I try to be as open and pragmatic as possible to stylistic expression, so my work can be abstract or realistic as well, and include materials or collages, and computer images.

A lot of my recent works have been acrylic on 2x2' wood board.

As an artist I build on my knowledge of images to express a reflection on the position on man and technique, that is both humanistic and technical.

My artistic goal is to provide a body of work that reflects the frailty of the human condition in a post-modern world where technique is both all encompassing and becoming a liability

I build my art as an architectural construction, so I thrive on constraints and how to overcome them, which makes me interested in commissions
